

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An object display device includes a visibility determining unit and an appearance changing unit. The visibility determining unit determines whether a first object to be handled on a screen hides a 5 second object that has been displayed on the screen. The appearance changing unit changes, depending on determination by the visibility determining unit, appearance of the first object so that the second object becomes visible.